Insanity: doing the same thing over and over again and expecting different results.

Top 10 Mistakes

Are you guilty?

10. Interrogation of jurors

- Jurors should be asked questions that identify potential bias, but shouldn't be made to feel like they are a murder suspect.

9. Bonding with just a few jurors

- It's easy to focus on the jurors who smile at you and give you all the good answers, but chances are that juror won't be around long. Besides, the other jurors get "jealous."

8. Refusal to ask the tough questions about case weaknesses

- ⦿ You can't ignore the big elephant in the corner.

If your case has a weakness (and all cases have them) then you have to address those issues in voir dire. The key is drafting a good question!

7. Allowing the Court to conduct all the voir dire

- Attorneys establish rapport and credibility with jurors during voir dire. Attorney conducted voir dire is essential and adds weight to that opening statement you spent so many hours writing and rehearsing!
- The State should be asking questions about the issues in your case.

6. Failure to ask the Court for the use of a Supplemental Juror Questionnaire

- Not that jurors lie....
but often they fail to disclose vital information because they are embarrassed or feel put on the spot. SJQs are imperative for cases involving sensitive subject matters.

5. Talking “down” to jurors

- Yes it's true that as a whole jurors read and understand info at about an 8th grade level – however, they can smell arrogance a mile away and will hold it against you and your client.

4. Failing to keep an open mind to their honest responses

- ⦿ Attorneys need to practice their poker faces before voir dire. If you react negatively to an answer they give, they will either:
 - Start lying to make you happy
 - Stop answering your questions
 - Adopt an attitude of defiance

3. Failure to use good social skills

- ◎ This is the time and place to use your social skills. Smile and (if appropriate) joke with the jury panel a little. Remember, the goal is to encourage full disclosure, so they need to like and trust you.
- ◎ Think of it as a party full of strangers, work at putting them at ease and everyone will have a good time.

2. Waiting till the last minute to draft your voir dire

- ⦿ Unless you have a vast data base of voir dire questions at your disposal, you should not be drafting your voir dire the night before trial.
- ⦿ But if you do, call a trial consultant or other prosecutors (NDAA, APAAC) with a vast data base.....

1. Failing to believe voir dire is essential to jury selection

⦿ “Just give me the first 12 pair of shoes that walk in the door.....” That statement is pretty scary.

● The scariest juror is the one you know nothing about!

What they didn't teach you in Law School about Jury Selection

General Principles

FIRST IMPRESSIONS ARE DIFFICULT TO CHANGE

You need to look/ act 'squared away' so that jurors will think

- ⦿ Make eye contact.
- ⦿ Use plain English.
- ⦿ Listen to jurors / judge.
- ⦿ Present a positive image.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS ARE DIFFICULT TO CHANGE

◎ Be confident!

- Jurors can sense when you are not confident, it bleeds into the rest of your case.
- Appearing confident = credibility / confidence in your case because you should prevail.
- Nervous / fearful behaviors (or those that can be interpreted as such) do not project credibility.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS ARE DIFFICULT TO CHANGE

- Sit up right.
- Don't tap your fingers on table or engage in other annoying habits.
- Watch your body language.
- Do not invade juror's space.
- Be polite to all jurors!

PREPARATION

- ④ Develop profiles
 - Characteristics
 - Jury chemistry

PREPARATION

Develop Profiles of Target Jurors

- ❖ Think through the process – imagining the types of experiences and attitudes you want and don't want
- ❖ Create a profile – not just demographics for your target lists
- ❖ Most important is who you don't want
 - ❖ Example: risk takers; pro doctors; sympathetic to special needs
- ❖ Only then do you create the list of who you hope to keep or accept
 - ❖ Water safety conscious; safety orientated; CPR certified; parental accountability

PREPARATION

- ⦿ Drafting questions
- ⦿ Attorney Conducted Voir Dire
- ⦿ Supplemental Juror
Questionnaire – sell this to Court
- ⦿ Combination of both

PREPARATION

- ◎ What do you want to know?
 - “What” questions reveal factual data
 - “Why” questions reveal a juror’s reasoning
 - “How” questions usually reveal a juror’s true feelings
 - Do you have strong feelings about the way the police enforce DUI laws?
- Attorney Conducted Voir Dire

PREPARATION

Drafting Voir Dire

- ❖ Identify experiences
 - ❖ How many of you have a pool that does not have a child safe fence?
- ❖ Inquire as to attitudes about experiences and case issues
 - ❖ Do you have strong feelings about the State of Arizona criminally prosecuting people for neglect, abuse or negligence of their child(ren)?
 - ❖ Do you or anyone close know or care for a person with Autism?

PREPARATION

- ⦿ Open end versus close ended questions
- ⦿ Drafting an outline of your voir dire
- ⦿ Write them out
- ⦿ Practice your questions
 - Are they well worded?
 - Are they offensive?
 - Are you following the EAR format?

 - Prescription drugs impair....

Questions – digging for information

- ⦿ Questions that uncover the characteristics of profiles
- ⦿ Questions that address your bad facts
- ⦿ Sources:
 - experiences
 - opinions, beliefs, and values
 - what they learned as a result
 - watch nonverbal communication

Demographics

- ⦿ The jurors' backgrounds consist of a variety of information, including such factors as:
 - race,
 - gender,
 - occupation,
 - education, and
 - organizational membership. While it's a starting point - You need much more
 - Background information comes primarily from judge voir dire (and in some cases, juror questionnaires)

Experiences

- ⦿ Jurors have had a variety of experiences that may have shaped their viewpoints as they pertain to your case. Potential biasing experiences can be divided into several categories:
 - (a) experiences that lead to viewing the defendant and/or defense witnesses more favorably,
 - (b) experiences that lead to viewing the victim and/or the state's witnesses in a negative light, and
 - (c) experiences that lead to viewing the actions of the victim positively.

Similarities and Over-Identification

- Can jurors with similar backgrounds as a party (victim, witness or defendant) lead them to view the party or witness more or less favorably?
- Would coming from certain upper socioeconomic status groups lead to possession of more calloused, anti-victim attitudes?
- Ask the questions – don't just assume!

General opinions

- ⦿ General opinions refer to the more global views, values, and opinions that jurors hold.
 - These views can reflect personality characteristics or traits of jurors, such as beliefs in distributive justice or perceptions of control over their lives, or general views that may have an indirect connection to your case.
- ⦿ While general opinions are usually less accurate than case-specific opinions in identifying bias, they are useful components in the search for bias.

Case-specific Opinions

- These opinions are directly related to some aspect of the case, such as the theme, circumstances of the case, or bias concerning a party or witness.
- These opinions have the potential to be more effective in identifying bias because they are more directly connected to the decisions that jurors will make.

The order is important

- ◎ Ask your questions in the order of their biasing power, starting with the factors that tend to exert the most bias, as follows:
 - (a) experience/relationships
 - (b) feelings
 - (c) thoughts and opinions.

DON'T PAINT A TARGET

- Introduce new voir dire topics with general questions about personal experiences when appropriate, but remember experience questions can paint the target for your opponent, so you must be careful.
- Always ask experience questions in the direction of negative biases

- Never follow-up on favorable answers. When a juror's answer favors your side of the case---you must absolutely never ever ask who else feels the same way or who else agrees as you will be painting targets for your opponent

- ◎ If someone says something that is bad for your case, don't cut them off! Find out who agrees with them.
- ◎ Never ever try to find out who disagrees with a juror expressing an unfavorable or negative position, as you will be painting the target—the jurors who are favorable to your case---for your opponent.
- ◎ If someone says something that bodes well for your case, find out who disagrees with them.

Identify Bias – Target for Cause

- ◎ Bias is that which is so strong that it cannot be changed.
 - Best you can do is attempt to show basis for strike for cause
 - Rehab by the Court mostly ineffective – essential to watch body language of juror and use of language
 - Most that are not excused are on your immediate list for preemptory strike

What if Background is All You've Got?

- ⦿ Recognizing the errors inherent in making generalizations based on gross background characteristics - sometimes we are unable to ask jurors directly about certain critical experiences or opinions:
- ⦿ Background characteristics can serve as indicators of certain jurors
- ⦿ If you are unable to investigate satisfactorily the jurors' views, you would not want to ignore certain background characteristics

The “Hard” Questions

- ⦿ Should you be using a SJQ?
- ⦿ Bench/private conference?
- ⦿ Is it hard because you’re afraid of the answer?
- ⦿ What do you really want to know?
 - Simplify
 - Identify the experience and follow with the attitude
 - What happened and how did you feel about it?

Questioning Techniques

Put your Interpersonal Skills to Work

- ⦿ The goal – make them talk
- ⦿ Don't go straight down the row... remember law school – keep jurors on their toes/no zoning out
- ⦿ Narrow focus?
 - Struck or strike and replace method
- ⦿ Promote juror candor
- ⦿ Use the loop method

DO'S AND DON'TS

Foster Participation Early and Often

- Keep jurors involved and participating in the voir dire process, particularly when questioning is conducted in group format.
- Break the tendency for jurors to be reluctant to participate in the process by getting all jurors involved early.
- Use "breaking the ice" technique which has all jurors raise their hands at the start of voir dire.
- Ask questions that all jurors are required to answer affirmatively (e.g., asking how many jurors have lived in the area for the past two years).
- Once jurors are participating – keep them involved

- Try to avoid or use sparingly questions that call for a yes or no response. They are usually of little or no diagnostic value and often confound accurate juror diagnosis. Similarly, avoid conformity-biasing questions such as “Wouldn’t you agree...?”

Do not worry about poisoning the panel. It's better to hear the “bad stuff” out in the court room, so that you can deal with it, rather than have it come out in the jury room, where you have no control.

Your fear of “tainting the jury panel”

- not supported by jury research
- identify all targets is the goal.

- Avoid the temptation to use voir dire as an opportunity to indoctrinate your jurors.
- Introduce case themes instead
- Keep in mind that your primary goal is to surgically remove the bad jurors. If you fail to remove the dangerous jurors your case will die before you get it to the operating table.

Evaluating the Information

- ⦿ Cause
- ⦿ Preemptory strike

LET'S TALK SJQS

Are they worth the work?

YES!

Benefits of Using a Supplemental Juror Questionnaire

- ⦿ It encourages full disclosure by jurors
- ⦿ It provides for privacy of individual disclosures
- ⦿ Ensures responses from each and every juror
- ⦿ Elicits full disclosure without tainting your jury or boring the other jurors
- ⦿ Provides a “big picture view” of your jury panel
- ⦿ Provides for jury selection strategy

I have an SJQ – now what?

- Overwhelming amount of information
- 1st – identify juror for cause – time saver
- SJQ sheets – get help/highlight and flag
- Ranking
- Identify follow up questions and design personalized questions
- Identify those that just have to go

Suppose you were a juror and were told that one side had the responsibility or burden of proving its case. If that side failed to prove its case according to the law, but you thought that side was right, what do you think you would do?

_____Vote for side I thought was right

_____Follow the instructions of the law

Have you ever served as part of an investigative committee assigned the task of determining if a person's behavior was proper (for example, to see if someone broke the rules at work, church, etc.)?

_____Yes _____No

IF YES: Please explain how you conducted your investigation

In the course of your employment are you or have you been required to conduct internal investigations on fellow employees? _____Yes _____No

IF YES: Please describe the circumstances. _____

How serious a problem do you think crime is in your neighborhood?

_____Very serious _____Serious _____Not so serious

Have you ever moved or considered moving because you thought crime was a problem in your neighborhood? _____Yes _____No

IF YES: Please explain. _____

- Use a juror rating sheet that allows you to record and rate jurors' responses in terms of their biasing power.
- Remember: Experiences, including the experiences of family, friends, co-workers and membership groups (etc.), trump all other factors in biasing power.

Deselecting your Jury

- ⦿ Voir dire only
- ⦿ SJQ and Voir Dire
- ⦿ Cause
- ⦿ Identification of:
 - Those who don't work well in a group
 - Fit your profile/fit your pro-defendant profile
 - Dishonest jurors
 - Jurors who won't/can't accept the facts of the case

Organize your Analysis

ZIMMERMAN JUROR GETS BOOK AGENT

One of the six anonymous jurors who acquitted George Zimmerman of second-degree murder in the death of Trayvon Martin has signed with a literary agent to write a book about the case less than 48 hours after the verdict.

The woman, known only as Juror B37 under court order, will enlist her husband, an attorney who works in the aerospace industry, as her co-author, agent Sharlene Martin said in a statement Monday.

“My hope is that people will read Juror B37’s book ... and understand the commitment it takes to serve and be sequestered on a jury in a highly publicized murder trial and how important, despite one’s personal viewpoints, it is to follow the letter of the law,” Martin said.

“It could open a whole new dialogue about laws that may need to be revised and revamped to suit a 21st century way of life,” she added. “The reader will also learn why the jurors had no option but to find Zimmerman not guilty due to the manner in which he was charged and the content of the jury instructions.”

The jurors, who were sequestered during the trial, deliberated about 16 hours before finding Zimmerman not guilty. He said he fired his 9mm pistol in self-defense after Martin, who did not have a gun, attacked him on Feb. 26, 2012 in Sanford, Fla.

The verdict has already sparked several large rallies and marches and there are plans for a 100-city vigil next weekend. The agent said the juror has not decided whether to reveal her identity “given the sensitivity of the verdict and the outpouring of mixed reactions by the American public.”

The woman has lived in the Sanford, Fla., area for 18 years and has two daughters – a 24-year-old pet groomer and a 27-year-old college student. During jury selection, she said she had been called for jury duty four times previously but never selected to sit on a case.

Martin has represented other authors involved in big trials, including the O.J. Simpson, Amanda Knox and Jodi Arias cases.

George Zimmerman has sued NBC Universal for defamation. The company strongly denies the allegation.
